Pastor's Message / Mensaje del Párroco

Before some Masses last weekend, I talked about offering the Blood of Christ to the faithful. All Masses at St. Colette offer the Precious Blood and only the 12pm Mass at St. Cecilia offers it. I, however, have seen a few reports on the news of a rising number of COVID cases recently. Also, I found out that two priests I know have COVID. Cases of COVID are definitely on the rise and we need to act out of an abundance of caution. Starting at the Masses today, we will suspend use of the cup until COVID or flu diminishes as a threat to our health. I and the church at large value receiving from the cup. It is a fuller sign of the communion that we celebrate with Jesus and one another. But we want to be sure that the use of the cup does not adversely affect the health and well-being of our parishioners. Thanks for your understanding.

St. Cecilia has the Rummage sale this weekend. Please see the announcement in the bulletin about this great event.

—Fr. John

Ante de algunas misas la semana pasada, hablo acerca de ofrecer la Copa durante las misas. La Copa se ofrece en todas las misas de Sta. Colette y en la misa de 12 de Sta. Cecilia. Pero he visto unos reportes en la noticia acerca de los números de casos de COVID. Mas personas tienen COVID que antes. Conozco a 2 sacerdotes que tienen COVID ahora. Definitivamente, casos de COVID están subiendo y necesitamos hacer todo para prevenir más casos. Hoy vamos a no utilizar la Copa en todas las Misas hasta que la amenaza disminuye. Yo y la Iglesia universal estiman la recepción de la Copa en la Misa. Es un señal más plena de la comunión con Jesús y nuestros hermanos en fe. Pero, queremos proteger la salud de nuestros feligreses. Gracias por entender.

Sta. Cecilia tiene el “Rummage Sale” este fin de semana. Favor de asistir este evento importante.

—P. Juan

‘Synodality’: A new word for an ancient reality

Wednesday, August 30, 2023

Pope Francis has insisted that for the church to be true to itself, we must act in a more synodal way. This is in keeping with the vision of renewal promoted in the teachings of the Second Vatican Council, which stressed the common dignity and mission of all the baptized for understanding the mystery and mission of the church.

All Catholics, as members of the church, not only journey and gather together, but also have the responsibility to actively share in the mission of proclaiming the Gospel.

In 2017, the International Theological Commission (ITC) produced a very helpful document, “Synodality in the Life and Ministry of the Church,” to help guide our discussion as the church prepares for the upcoming synod on synodality. The text notes that synodality has its roots in an ancient and venerable term, “synod,” which is rooted in divine revelation...

Yet, despite all of this very helpful theological background, we unfortunately have witnessed recent statements by some taking issue with Holy Father’s decision to call a synod on synodality. Among the mistaken assertions, which are stoking fears, is that the gathering in Rome this October will radically alter church teaching and practice, align both with secular ideas and result in schism.

History has shown that the use of fear tactics by those who resist any kind of renewal that involves change is not new. We would do well to recall the speech, “Gaudet Mater Ecclesia” (“Mother Church Rejoices”), given by St. Pope John XXIII at the start of Vatican II. In the face of dire predictions that the council would ruin the church, the saintly pope rejected the thoughts of “prophets of doom who are always forecasting disaster” in the world and in the future of the church.

But more important, these modern day “prophets of doom” totally mischaracterize the aim of the synod on synodality. The main question for the upcoming synod is: How are we to remain faithful to Christ’s own plan for the church? This is a question St. Pope John Paul II insisted the church must continually raise.

In his apostolic letter, “Novo Millennio Ineunte” (“At the Beginning of the New Millennium”), he wrote that the governing structures of the church “need to be examined constantly in order to ensure that they follow their genuinely evangelical inspiration.” While acknowledging that much has been done in this regard since Vatican II, especially with respect to reforming the Roman Curia, the functioning of synods and episcopal conferences, there is still work to do “in order to realize all the potential of these instruments of communion, which are especially appropriate today in view of the need to respond promptly and effectively to the issues which the church must face in these rapidly changing times.”

In other words, what Pope Francis is doing in calling for a synod on synodality is in keeping with the vision of his predecessors and the Second Vatican Council.

So “synodality,” while the word may seem new, actually speaks to an ancient reality. A careful reading of the document from the ITC cited above, makes clear that “synodality is the specific ‘modus vivendi et operandi’ (‘way of living and working’) of the church, the people of God, which reveals and gives substance to her being as communion when all her members journey together, gather in assembly and take an active part in her evangelizing mission.”

The aim of the upcoming synod is in keeping with the vision of St. Pope John Paul II, as expressed by the ITC, namely that “making a synodal church a reality is an indispensable precondition for a new missionary energy that will involve the entire people of God.”

That surely is nothing ever to be feared.
